Calls for protecting farm land in Provincial plans

By Bill Rea

Provincial planning documents do a good job of protecting certain lands, but do they do enough to protect farms?

That question was on the minds of several people Tuesday night as the Town of Caledon hosted a public session on provincial plan reviews.

More than 60 people were on hand for the session at Caledon Community Complex in Caledon East.

Tim Manley, senior policy planner with the Town, explained three provincial plans, the Niagara Escarpment Plan, the Oak Ridges Moraine Conservation Plan and the Greenbelt Plan, are all up for review next year. The aim, he said, is to determine what is and is not working when it comes to these documents, and if there's any way to make them more relevant. He added the Town will also be offering positions to the Province and was seeking public input on what that should be.

Manley pointed out most of Caledon is influenced by at least one of these plans, and they contain policies that affect land uses and development approvals. He added that since all three plans will be under review at the same time, this offers a chance for significant influence on the planning process.

"This is a very unique opportunity," he remarked.

He observed that land-use planning impacts almost every aspect of people's lives, and helps shape communities. He described it as managing land and resources in a way that balances the interests of individual property owners with wider interests of the community.

vincial Plans have to conform with these documents. He explained the Provincial Planning Act sets out ground rules, describing how land uses can be controlled, and who controls them. He also referred to the new Provincial Policy Statement (PPS), which came into effect last month, commenting that it contains overall policy direction aimed at building strong and healthy communities, promoting wise use and management of resources, and protecting public health and safety.

The three plans that are to be reviewed were each implemented by legislation. The Niagara Escarpment Planning and Development Act was passed in 1973, the Oak Ridges Moraine Conservation Act passed in 2001 and passage of the Greenbelt Act was in 2005.

Development control on the Escarpment is handled by the Niagara Escarpment Commission (NEC), while the other two plans are administered at the municipal level.

People attending Tuesday's session were asked to address a variety of questions, such as whether the three plans are effective in their ability to achieve their respective purposes.

There were some people who maintained that there needs to be more protection specifically for farmland.

One woman observed NEC is a strong body when it comes to protecting land. But there were also observations that it could be strengthened. "The Niagara Escarpment Plan could use more legislative teeth," one person observed.

Another said there is little being done to protect the viability of family farms.

There were some comments that the input from Tuesday's session could help in that regard, although one man observed there weren't enough people out. He suggested greater use of social media to attract a younger crowd.

Debbe Crandall, representing Save The Oak Ridges Moraine (STORM), stressed the

Community out for Bethell Hospice

Fundraising walks in support of Bethell Hospice have been attracting lots of attention over the last couple of weeks. There was no shortage of participants last Sunday and walkers took to the Caledon Trailway in Inglewood. Then others were out Saturday walking the trails through Bolton Mill Park. It's estimated the combined efforts have raised more than $90,000.

National Road Safety Week

Put the odds on your side

The following article was submitted by the Canada Safety Council.

All kinds of people use roads to get where they need to be, but a lot of them don't have seatbelts, air bags or several hundreds of pounds of metal keeping them safe.

This National Road Safety Week (May 13 to 19), the Canada Safety Council is aiming to raise awareness that vulnerable road users make up a disproportionate amount of traffic collisions and deaths, most of which are entirely avoidable.

In 2011, the most recent year where data is available, vulnerable road users accounted for more than a quarter of traffic fatalities according to Transport Canada. Pedestrians accounted for about 16 per cent of that number, while the other 11 per cent was split between bicyclists (2.6 per cent) and motorcyclists (8.4 per cent).

Responsibility lies with both the vulnerable road user and the motorist in ensuring their mutual safety.

Vulnerable road users should be aware of their surroundings at all times, taking extra care to follow the rules of the road.

Pedestrians should cross the road only at designated crosswalks and intersections only when the way is clear. Breakdowns of incident causes are only available between 2004 and 2008, but the statistics show that more than 60 per cent of fatal traffic crashes involving pedestrians happened while they were crossing a road. Of these deaths, only 10 per cent came when the pedestrian had the right of way to cross at an intersection.

A disproportionately high number of collisions among cyclists, pedestrians and motorcyclists alike happened due to a lack of visibility or at night. Wearing bright colours, retro-reflective bands and lighting, if necessary, could help make sure they see and is seen.

Responsibility also falls on drivers and their reactions. One recurring problem is distracted driving, specifically as it relates to smartphone use and texting. Vulnerable road users are already hard to see, but a divided attention span from the driver only amplifies the problem and shaves seconds off the driver's reaction time.

Texting while driving makes a crash or near-crash 23 times more likely to happen if the driver is distracted. If the phone buzzes while you're driving, don't answer it. It can wait.

Whether you're a driver, a pedestrian, a motorcyclist, a cyclist or any other kind of road user, share the road. It may help save your life.

Community out to help Egan Funeral Home mark 100 years

By Bill Rea

There was a happy and nostalgic mood in Egan Funeral Home in Bolton Saturday.

The facility on the south hill of the village has completed a significant expansion, and it was also seen as a good time to mark 100 years of service to the community.

The story dates to 1913, when William R. Egan, his wife, two daughters and son Bill moved to Bolton and bought the carriage business as well as the funeral operation. Bill and his brother Harold took over the business in 1932 upon the death of their father. In those days, the funeral home was on King Street in the valley (roughly where the Royal Courtyards are today), before the move to its current location in 1957.

Paul Egan, Bill's son, runs the funeral home today, and the fourth generation is now active in it.

It is much of that spirit that was being celebrated Saturday.

"This is really a family and community event," remarked Murray Stewart, who was MC at the formal ceremony.

Stewart was among those who marvelled at the results of the renovation and expansion, calling it "very luxurious indeed."

The ceremony was held in the chapel of the home, and Stewart observed it is often the scene of solemn ceremonies.

"Let's deal with joy and laughter pulling on hearts together," he urged.

Stewart also reflected on the history the occasion represented, observing that 1913 saw storms on the Great Lakes that claimed 19 ships and 250 lives. It was also the year Henry Ford started using the assembly line, which started leading to the end of carriage works. Mr. Egan saw that coming, and changed the carriage works to a hardware store.

He also said the population of Bolton in those days, based on the 1911 census, was 707.

Dufferin-Caledon MPP Sylvia Jones observed the chapel was full Saturday, a sign of how dear the Egans are to the community. The fact that the family has been able to work together for so many years was something to marvel at too. Jones said she has six brothers. "I would never work with my brothers," she said.

Mayor Marolyn Morrison said the Egans have long been "the back bone of the community," adding she's always been amazed at the compassion and help they show people at times of need.

She thanked the Egans "for being such an important, integral part of the community."

There were also tributes read on behalf of Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson and former premier Bill Davis, as well as certificates presented to from Prime Minister Stephen Harper and Gov-Gen David Johnston.

Egan said he was "deeply touched," as he acknowledged the good wishes of the day, agreeing it was a time to reflect on a rich history.

"Each member of our family has contributed to our success as a firm," he observed.

"Our town has been blessed to have the Egan family here for 100 years." Stewart concluded.

Murray Stewart represented Dufferin-Caledon MP David Tilson in presenting certificates from the Prime Minister and Governor General to Paul Egan.

Mayor Marolyn Morrison and Councillor Rob Mezzapelli presented a Cory Trepanier print to Paul Egan.

OPP concerned about off-road and motorcycle stats

Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) are reporting that off-road vehicle (ORV) deaths have reached a four-year high, and that has police concerned heading into the Victoria Day long weekend.

A total of 20 people died in ORV incidents in OPP jurisdiction during 2013, compared to 12 in 2012, 14 in 2011 and 17 in 2010. Of the 20 fatalities in 2013, 13 of them were attributed to lack of helmet use and nine of them involved alcohol consumption.

These alarming statistics have OPP warning ORV riders who include alcohol and exclude helmets as part of their riding activity to curb these deadly behaviours before these leading causes of deaths continue to rise.

Police are also asking the public to partner with them to reduce the rising number of ORV fatalities. Officers are calling on the family members and friends of ORV enthusiasts to urge their loved ones to wear a helmet and drive sober.

“Over the past 10 years (2004-2013), a total of 263 people have died in ORV incidents within OPP jurisdiction,” said OPP Deputy Commissioner Brad Blair. “Imagine how much more devastating losing a family member or friend would be if you knew they were impaired or not wearing a helmet and you didn’t intervene to save their life.”

when the collision occurred.

“Among the most tragic of the 26 motorcycle fatalities last year are the 11 in which the motorcyclist was driving properly at the time of the collision,” observed OPP Chief Superintendent Don Bell, commander of OPP’s Highway Safety Division. “Far too often, our collision reconstruction investigations reveal that the actions of another driver were a causal factor. This makes motorcycle safety an issue to which all road users need to pay close attention.”

Motorcyclists are more vulnerable than other road users because motorcycles are tougher to see than other vehicles and they provide virtually no protection in the event of a crash. For this reason, all motorists need to maintain a keen awareness of their surroundings and always be on watch for motorcycles.

With high volumes of traffic expected over the long weekend, OPP officers throughout the province will be doing their part to keep people safe, both on and off-road. They are counting on one of their most valued partners — the many drivers and ORV enthusiasts who head out this weekend — to drive and ride safely in a collective effort to get through the weekend incident-free.

Leading up to and over the May Long Weekend, OPP are also taking part in Canada Road Safety Week, which runs from May 13 to 19. During the campaign, OPP and their policing partners will be focusing their education and enforcement efforts on the “big four” driving behaviours on Ontario roads that place all roads users at risk.

These are driving impaired by alcohol or drugs, failure to use or improper use of seat belts, distracted; and aggressive driving.

Motorcycle deaths are another OPP statistic that is on the rise. A total of 28 motorcyclists died (in OPP jurisdiction) in 2013, compared to 26 in 2012 and 21 in 2011. Impaired, aggressive and distracted driving are all common contributing factors in motorcycle crashes investigated by the OPP. Sadly, in some cases, the riders were not doing anything wrong

Collision results in charges

A 41-year-old woman from Brampton was charged April 22 after a Caledon OPP investigation into a traffic collision on Airport Road, in the area of Coolihans Sideroad.

Police report they were called to the scene shortly after midnight. They found a black Chrysler NLX in the west ditch, a woman who identified herself as the driver told officers she had consumed alcohol. Officers demanded a breath sample from the woman, but she was not able to provide a suitable one. She was arrested on that charge, and a subsequent search of the vehicle uncovered a quantity of alcohol, as well as drugs believed to be marijuana.

In addition to failing to provide a breath sample, the woman was charged with possession of a schedule II substance and driving with alcohol readily available.

Her licence was suspended on the spot, and her vehicle was impounded for seven days.

Concerns over appeal process for Greenbelt and Moraine plans

importance of people understanding the panning process and what has to be done to bring about change.

Another woman suggested some way to be found to educate new residents. She wondered, for example, if some official could visit people moving into homes that back onto conservation land to explain the implications of the rules that are in effect.

Councillor Rob Mezzapelli observed that to make the effort really effective, it's important that people understand why the policies and regulations are in place.

Other questions put to participants included whether they thought the plans are lacking.

One woman commented the plans achieve their respective purposes, but at the expense of individual land owners.

Councillor Allan Thompson added there's no appeal process for rulings governing the Moraine or Greenbelt, as well as a lack of property owners' rights.

Mezzapelli called for greater clarity in the policies of the plans, adding there needs to be more consistency. He said some things are permitted in some areas and not in others.

He also observed the Greenbelt plan protects agricultural land, but presents problems when it comes to providing infrastructure to support farms.

Another man raised the issue of people who own property that was bought for investment purposes, but who can do nothing with it because of Greenbelt rules. "We just feel frustrated," he said.

There were also comments that these plans don't go far enough when it comes to dealing with aggregate extraction.

Former councillor Ian Sinclair said there are a number of examples of people trying to undertake relatively minor projects who get bogged down with red tape. He cited an example of people trying to set up a farmers' market. "They're being treated like they're trying to put in Square One malls," he commented.

Another woman observed the boundary standards should be reviewed, as there's no clear word on how they were established.

"What we're doing is preparing to negotiate with the Province," Councillor Richard Whitehead observed.

He also said he gets a lot of complaints from residents who say the application process in a lot of cases is complicated, time consuming and expensive. He said a process needs to be set up that is simpler, but still offers the required protection.

When it comes to possible improvements, Sinclair suggested one plan that could be administered by municipalities, with the Province being able to appeal decisions that are "wacko."

Crandall argued there are appeals for the Moraine or Greenbelt plans available through the Ontario Municipal Board. That route isn't used often, and she argued that's a sign the policies are good.

Sinclair disagreed, arguing the acts creating the two plans specifically bar all forms of legal appeal.

Manely said planners would look into how possible appeals are.

Participants in Tuesday's meeting took part in round-table discussions to consider various questions.

D-C voters likely to choose among five candidates

By Bill Rea and James Matthews
Sylvia Jones now has some opposition in her fight to stay on as Dufferin-Caledon's member in the Ontario Legislature. Three other candidates have surfaced to do battle with the Progressive Conservative incumbent, with a fourth likely to be nominated.

In a riding that has been solidly Tory since Mavis Wilson joined a Liberal sweep in 1987, none of the other provincial parties have bothered to hold nomination conventions and it wasn't until this week that the Liberals let it be known that their candidate is Bobbie Daid, a resident of Caledon's Tullamore area who runs a chain of hotels.

Jones, who was nominated at a PC convention last year, opened her campaign headquarters in Orangeville Saturday, has a re-election team firmly in place and has begun seeking volunteers to help on the hustings.

"We are excited to present a positive plan for Ontario's future," she said at the headquarters opening. "When you have too many priorities, you have no priorities. And that's exactly what we've seen with

The June 12 election was triggered after NDP leader Andrea Horwath announced plans to defeat the government over a budget observers saw as NDP-friendly. Premier Kathleen Wynne immediately went to Lt.-Gov. David Onley, who agreed to prorogue the legislature.

Jones told about 20 supporters and staff present at her campaign office that the gulf between the Grits and the Tories is a difference in policy and a philosophy.

"A PC government will be focused on creating jobs in Ontario," she said. "Kathleen Wynne said she wanted to go to the people. Well, I'm happy to oblige."

Jones said the province's economy could be turned over by lower taxes, a balanced budget, and controlling hydro rates for families and businesses.

sauga for a City council seat vacated when Eve Adams was elected to a federal seat earlier that year.

"I think this area has been neglected," she remarked, asserting that it doesn't currently have a real voice at Queen's Park. "I think there are many needs of the constituents that are not being met."

Daid added that those needs include better health care and GO train service. GO is slated to be established in Bolton at some point, and once that happens, she said it will serve people from all over Caledon, as well as Orangeville and area “in connecting everybody regularly to the GTA.”

She also commented that young people in the area have little to do. She has identified the need for more local funding for the arts, and said she wants to promote that.

"I always like the underdog's chances," Daid observed, adding her party is going to do well in the coming campaign. "I believe we're going to come out very strongly, with a Liberal majority."

She added the riding has had a Conservative blue stripe for many years. "It's going to come out with a new stripe, and it's going to be red," she said.

Meanwhile, a veteran of the fight against the Melancthon quarry will be carrying the Green Party colours in Dufferin-Caledon.

Karren Wallace has received the party's nomination, bringing some two decades of experience in municipal governance to the campaign.

She said she's on unpaid leave from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing as a municipal adviser.

This will be the mother of three's first run for elected office. "I've never felt the need to," she explained.

She added she lives on the precipice of where the massive quarry had been slated to go before the proposal was withdrawn in the face of massive opposition. The experience she gained as part of that fight gave her an understanding of the balance between the needs of industry and the taxpayer.

"It wasn't a NIMBY issue," she said. "This happens all over Ontario."

She also commented on her desire to see local issues brought to the front at Queen's Park, adding that's not happening right now, with a lot of dissatisfaction in the riding over wind turbine issues in Dufferin and the massive Canadian Tire depot being built in Bolton.

Wallace observed that when one is part of a big machine, it's harder for them to speak for everyone. "We need somebody to question that and be in the legislature every day to speak for the people of Dufferin-Caledon," she declared, saying she is confident of her chances in the coming campaign.

"I am in it to win it," she said. "I really think the government and the local MPP need to get into doing things for the good people of Ontario, and not to the good people."

"I'm not adverse to taking on a challenge and winning it," she remarked, adding if people keep voting for either the Progressive Conservatives or Liberals, they will never create change.

The New Democratic Party hasn't yet picked a local candidate, but Daniel Kowalewski's candidacy in the riding has been announced by the Libertarians, meaning there will likely be at least five names on the ballot.

In the October 2011 election, Jones polled 17,820 votes to 10,088 for the Liberals' Lori Holloway, 5,540 to the Green Party's Rob Strang, 4,195 for the NDP's Karen Gventer and 250 for Kowalewski.

Bolton Transportation Master Plan

NOTICE OF STUDY COMMENCEMENT

The Town of Caledon and the Regional Municipality of Peel have initiated a joint study to develop a Transportation Master Plan (TMP) for the community of Bolton.

The purpose of the study is to address the transportation and road network concerns in the study area (see map) to support municipal planning goals for the short-, medium- and long-term. The study will follow a comprehensive multi-modal transportation master planning approach which will include developing a transportation vision for the downtown core area.

STUDY AREA

The Bolton TMP study area is bounded by Gore Road to the west, Caledon King Town Line/Albion Vaughan Road to the east, Old Church Road to the north, and Mayfield Road to the south. Broadly, it will encompass the west part of Vaughan, the northeast part of Brampton, Airport Road to the west, and up to Highway 9 in the north for undertaking network analysis, goods movement characteristics, transit considerations and other broad aspects of the study.

STUDY AREA INDICATED WITH RED DOTTED LINE

PROCESS

The Bolton Transportation Master Plan Study will follow the requirements of the Municipal Class Environmental Assessment (EA) master planning process which typically represents Phases I and II of the EA process. The study will be conducted in two parallel streams: Technical Analyses and Public Consultation. Public Consultation will be undertaken to seek inputs from the members of the public, elected officials, stakeholders, municipal and agency staff and other interested parties or groups.

PUBLIC CONSULTATION

This Transportation Master Plan is expected to address a broad range of transportation issues, priorities, objectives and implementation timings. The Town of Caledon and the Region of Peel are committed to public participation and encourage residents, stakeholders and members of the public with an interest to contact the project management team as listed below. Public Information Centres will be held during the course of the study.

Robert F. Hall CCS taking this year’s production to Stratford

By Constance Scrafield
What happens when a creative team with a penchant for off-the-wall productions mixes Shakespeare with pop stars and hits from the 1980s? You get Hall Drama’s production of Taming of the Shrew at Robert F. Hall Catholic Secondary School in Caledon East. What a blast this rendition is: Shakespeare’s own words, combined in some measure with 21st Century dialogue and cell phones, ‘80s hits, all blended into the ancient plot. Does that describe it? Wait, we have not mentioned the wild costumes, the wigs, the stars: three of the student actors have the dual task of impersonating an ‘80s star and delivering their roles with Shakespeare’s clever, funny, difficult dialogue, songs, action and dancing! Challenging, surely, for the most seasoned of performers. So, Billy Idol is presented as Petruchio;

Annie Lennox takes on Katherine (or Kate, as she is called familiarly and we all know how she felt about that) and Madonna (who else) plays the beautiful and much lusted after Bianca. So, for instance, imagine the task involved for the young actor playing Billy Idol playing Petruchio. Naturally gifted with plenty of talent and wild youthful enthusiasm, led by a couple of well-seasoned mentors, Rob Ciccotelli and Frank Adriano, who have been putting these shows together for several years, the Hall Drama students are having the time of their lives, while storing up indelible memories and invaluable experience. Heading this multi award winning Dramatic Arts Department, Ciccotelli and Adriano have travelled with lot, stock and personnel to the Winter Garden Theatre in Toronto; to the U.S.A., including off Broadway, New York; to London, England; and to Macerata, Italy.

We had the chance to sit in with the cast and co-director Ciccotelli. Primarily, we were interested to talk the actors to get their take on the whole experience of working with this hilarious marriage between Shakespeare and the 1980s with 21st century sidebars. It was with real sadness that we learned, as a confirmation, that Shakespeare is no longer part of the set curriculum in high schools (a disaster, in our opinion, of short-sightedness that might very well reflect on the future of theatre programming, to the overwhelming loss for future audiences) and that very few of these young thespians have even read anything by Shakespeare. They seemed to know about the tragedies and were glad to be doing one of the Bard’s comedies. They have rehearsed four to five nights a week, reduced somewhat during exam time, since November. So, we asked them about doing Shakespeare on stage. They admitted the difficulties but laid claim to the joy. “It’s not the understanding (of the language), but delivering the lines,” one told us. Another explained, “The hardest thing is to keep what’s already been done so often, but yet to give it your own interpretation.” There was praise for the two teachers who sacrifice so much of their time to make these events happen. “The foundation is here at Hall – I just want to thank Chico and Adriano. They are encouraging us – we went to off-Broadway and, now, to Stratford,” claimed one tall young man. One of the others mentioned, “Their productions are always really professionally done; the standards are very high.” One of the girls told us, “Everyone works hard. They inspire us to do our best.” Reflecting back on the challenges of acting the Shakespearian dialogue, a student said, “It’s . . . exciting to get to learn the word play — getting to learn how to rattle off all his lines — it’s really fun.” “We’re so used to reading tragedies but reading comedies is fun . . .” Although it was noted: “(Shrew) is a comedy, but it deals with some serious issues — it’s really dark.” A student, now in his fourth year with Hall Drama, talked about the friendship of this cast: “This group is a well formed group — I’m just loving it here every day — there’s so much joy and a lot of camaraderie.” Another young lady echoed the sentiment: “I really enjoy working with this cast — it’s so much fun to learn off each other.” We had heard this theme of bonding within an acting cast so often before that we asked them to compare theatre to sports activities. “It can be the same because in sports, you’re all playing as a team,” one of the girls told us. Another contrasted the comment by offering the view of individual sports, where competition is all. “Sport is all about competition,” she said, “but this is a lot more sharing, learning off each other.” Another added, “As a dancer outside of school, there’s always competition and judging but here, no one’s judging me. I love the atmosphere — no one’s scared to ask for help — the younger kids ask me how this or that is done. It’s really good.” “We’re not afraid to take constructive criticism from each other,” was the assurance from yet another enthusiastic student. Ciccotelli supported their remarks by agreeing. “These guys are pretty nice with each other; it hasn’t always been like that with every group . . .” Asked why people will want to come and see this production, they had plenty of answers. “It’s really funny.” “All the clever word play by Shakespeare.” “A lot of people might not get Shakespeare but the ‘80s music is great.” “The costumes are really bold.” “It’s really new — really different!” Hall Drama is participating in the Dufferin Youth Festival of the Arts with a 15-minute segment of the show. They are performing shortened versions at St. Cornelius Elementary School in Caledon East today (Thursday) on May 15 at 1:10 p.m.; St. Andrew Elementary School tomorrow at 12:30 p.m.; the full version at the Stratford Studio Theatre May 23 at 1 p.m. and Robert F. Hall May 27 at 7:30 p.m. Next year, they have been invited to Las Angeles, where they will perform a well known British Farce. We can hardly wait for the details.

Tausha Hanna, James Amadei and Victoria Sigismondo are playing Annie Lennox, Billy Idol and Madonna in Hall Drama’s production of Taming of the Shrew, An 80’s Musical.

Patti Foley will be seeking re-election as Bolton rep on council

Ward 5 Regional Councillor Patti Foley has announced that she will be seeking a second term as Bolton's representative on Caledon council.

Foley, who took the seat in 2010, made her bid official last week. A Bolton resident for more than two decades, she said she has spent a busy four years working with council and staff, at both Town and Regional levels, to initiate and advance infrastructure improvements, address traffic safety issues, support environmental initiatives and advocate for the Bolton community she loves.

"I came into my Regional councillor role with many aspirations for my community," she said. "I feel I have accomplished some of those goals, made progress on others, and have set the stage for a very productive second term. The improvements you see happening in the Bolton downtown core for example are just the beginning of what I see as the absolutely necessary revitalization of a village that – in my opinion – has been allowed to stagnate."

Foley, who moved to Bolton in 1991, has a long history of community activism in Caledon. A lifelong volunteer, she was a familiar face in the community well before the 2010 election. She was a driving force behind numerous community organizations like Our Caledon Our Choice, the Non-Profits Networking Club and Green T Environmental Awareness. In the course of her four years on council, she has served the community on almost 20 committees, boards and working groups.

Among her commitments is enriching life for young families in Bolton and providing housing options that are suitable for area seniors.

"We are very close on a number of housing developments that would be positive additions to our community and that is very exciting," she said.

Foley agreed there are a couple of contentious issues receiving a lot of attention right now.

"The best solutions will come about when all sides start working together to problem-solve, and in a way that puts priority on the welfare of the community as a whole," she said.

"I saw a note on someone's desk once that said 'Stand Tall, Tell the Truth, Take the Heat,'" she added. "I love that. It is very much how I try to live my life, and in fact, it is how I approach my role on council."

"Complaining doesn't solve problems, and sugar coating them doesn't make them go away," she observed. "We need to get together and find solutions so we can help Bolton reach its full potential."

TOUCHING LIVES FOR 40 YEARS

A Message from Regional Chair Emil Kolb

This year, the Region of Peel proudly celebrates its 40th anniversary.

Back in 1974, Peel was home to 300,000 people. Today, we have grown to become the second largest municipality in Ontario with more than 1.3 million residents and 88,000 businesses.

The Region of Peel strives to deliver services that contribute to the quality of life of our residents. What we do is about people. For forty years, we have touched your lives in many ways – from providing health, social and housing services, collecting garbage, recyclables and yard waste to building and maintaining roads, water and sewer systems.

On behalf of Regional Council, I want to thank all residents in Mississauga, Brampton and Caledon for working with us to help shape the services we provide in Peel.

As we plan for the future, we will continue to be a relevant, progressive and accountable government that is dedicated to responding to community needs and providing value for taxpayers.

Editorial

‘Tis the season
to be careful

The weather has improved. It's not hard to see people wearing shorts as they walk down the street. Summer is in the air, and many of us are eagerly looking forward to the first holiday weekend of the warmer time of year.

But it is also a time when the carefree attitudes can occasionally get in the way of good common sense. That can mean it becomes a dangerous time.

That is a concern to police all over the area, including Caledon OPP.

Police have already indicated they are concerned with the number of off-road vehicle (ORV) deaths and injuries that have been encountered in Ontario over the last couple of years. The figures when it comes to people riding motorcycles has also caused a certain amount of alarm. They have served warning that these issues are going to have a high priority, starting this coming weekend.

As we stated above, in many of these cases, the issues involve little more than good common sense.

For example, if you're going to ride an ARV, wear protection like a helmet. And don't go riding if you've had anything to drink. And if you drive a motorcycle, be aware of what's going on around you. Common sense should tell you that if you get into serious difficulty on such a machine, you don't have a lot protecting you.

It's up to all of us to be aware as we travel about during the summer, and especially the long weekends.

And since we're heading into a long weekend, it would benefit all of us to remember there are going to be many people using the roads, so appropriate caution would be in order. We might all be in a hurry to get to wherever it is we're going, but the destinations will all still be there if we're a couple of minutes late.

Caledon needs vision

A few days ago, I attended a public meeting at the invitation of the area councillor to hear a developer's proposal for a potential seniors' village.

The preliminary plans presented was for 3,000 seniors living on 200 acres adjacent to the village of Caledon, in the Greenbelt. The developer's aim was to engage citizens before applying for significant changes to the Town's zoning bylaws and exemptions from the Greenbelt standards.

Attractive catch phrases were used for the proposed development. Lots of green spaces. Variety of housing units not currently available to the ballooning number of seniors.

We all know that the number of seniors is increasing exponentially. Who is planning for them? I don't know.

My concern is that without an imaginative vision for the whole of Caledon, the bits and pieces do not make Caledon what it could be in the future.

Where is the vision for the Town? It is essential to have an overall vision, so individual proposals can blend together into a harmonious whole.

Presently, landowners and developers plan for their own interests on their particular piece of Caledon. Does it benefit Caledon? It seldom does, yet it may.

As long as the approval process is followed, benefit to our Town is seldom achieved. Who watches out for our interests?

There is pressure from the Province for Caledon to absorb a large number of new residents. Who is envisioning imaginative urban design solutions so we can accommodate them, while improving our town?

Perhaps my experiences will inspire some of us to demand planning for Caledon: Not reacting to and manipulating piecemeal applications, but active planning we can all support. Successful growth needs a vision and planning strategy for a better town that benefits all.

My experiences may inspire our decision makers. In Berlin, I collaborated with Walter Gropius to create a vision for a large bombed-out section of the city. We created a concept which was debated by the community and approved by politicians.

When we proceeded to design a large component in detail as architects, all of the circumstances and context were known. Approval was swift as context was honoured.

In Caledon, nothing like that exists. No vision, as far as I know. Individual projects are processed without relying on an overall vision and fitting into a desirable community we deserve. Very seldom do they benefit Caledon.

I also had an interesting experience in Pakistan, where we designed a new satellite community for Karachi for the emerging middle class. Canadian technologies were used. Time to do the same in Caledon and use the best examples from around the globe.

As architects, we start with a concept, a vision that guides our creative efforts. When I was designing the Eaton's Centre, there was no planning vision for that part of Toronto. So we created it. The results speak for themselves. As a newcomer to Toronto, I walked Yonge Street many, many times, imagining how such a huge complex would enrich everyone's experience of city life. In England, we designed a city centre for Cambridge by creating a vision for the city's growth and our designs fitted I with it. Approvals were easy and quick.

The plans for the seniors' village are early and appear opportunistic in the present circumstances. Nothing more can be expected as no larger framework exists for Caledon.

There's so much talent in Caledon; it should be harnessed for creating a vision for the town that will guide the town's growth. And grow it will.

Any fan of James Bond movies (and there are lots of you out there) knows the main reason 007 is as good as he is stems from all the brilliant, colourful and sinister villains he has to overcome. Some of those bad guys have shown gusto that even Batman's enemies would be hard pressed to match.

Winter can get lost

Is it just my imagination, or is winter really over?

I hate to jump to conclusions, especially considering the winter we've been having (notice how I'm hedging on whether it's actually concluded or not).

It is a fact that I have been considering getting the lawnmower out from wherever it was I parked it last fall (I've had other things on my mind in the intervening months). I have not yet taken definite action in that direction — I think it's known as procrastinating.

In discussion with my wife, I have actually raised the subject of breaking out the barbecue (I know for a fact that it's in the garage). That's only in the discussion stages at this point. Actually, I'm looking forward to getting back into that routine. At the risk of sounding immodest, I believe I am getting rather good at backyard cooking. I even toyed with the idea of cooking the Christmas turkey on the barbecue this year, but was quickly talked out of it.

One of the issues with barbecuing is it requires my constantly running in and out between the house and yard. We're not sure how our new cat Ella is going to react to that. She's adventuresome enough that we fear she might bolt her way to some unauthorized excursion and my legs are long passed the day when I could run after an excited pussy cat. It was never an issue with our former cat. Sidney wouldn't have voluntarily left the house if it was on fire.

Things haven't progressed yet to the point where we've started talking about that annual failure we call a garden. I'm actually being a harsh with ourselves, because last year's effort was actually not bad. Maybe dig the holes a bit deeper this year, and not bother with the purple alyssum (it didn't work). Beth and I have a rule that we never take action in that direction before Victoria Day — too often we've been euchred by unexpected frosts.

But there are some sure signs that I have expected that the aforementioned winter is history. For example, I had the winter tires removed from my car earlier this week. That was actually a new experience for me. In the past, I haven't bothered with winter tires, relying instead on my own experience and front-wheel drive to get me out of snow-related messes. I was at a funeral for the mother of a friend about a year ago, and it was the doctor of the deceased, who had also been my late mother's doctor, who recognized me and struck up a conversation. One of the issues he raised dealt with the value of having the appropriate tires on your car for the winter — he in fact got pretty emphatic. If one can't trust his late mother's doctor, who's he going to trust? So I went out and got them installed, at significant expense, before the snows arrived. I ended up getting stuck in a driveway during the December ice storm and had to call CAA to get me out. Needless to say, that experience gave me cause to wonder how worthwhile the expense was.

Or maybe I'm being somewhat cynical, which could be part of a negative attitude that many of us might be suffering from after such a harsh winter. And most, if not all, of us received ample indications that this was a heavy winter.

During the ice storm, for example, I personally got off rather easy, losing power for about half an hour. Yet I had friends and family who were hit a lot harder, and bearing concerns for them was not the best way to spend the days immediately before Christmas. But we got through it.

So did most of the community, and the evidence of the devastation is still there to be seen. I was out taking pictures last weekend of volunteers dragging downed tree limbs out of the bush. And I noticed that is a very heavy job — three people were tugging so hard ended up falling on their backsides (I'm too nice a guy to have taken a picture of that).

I was up early Easter Sunday, climbing the Alton Pinnacle to get a picture of the Sunrise Service. There was all manner of downed branches and limbs on and around the trail.

I've lately been seeing lots of piles of storm debris along the sides of roads, waiting to be collected.

Beth and I spent our regular vacation week up north in the first week February. We came home a day early because this area had been hammered with the snow, and a substantial dumping was expected for Muskoka. Once we got home, we found a driveway with about a foot of the white stuff. I spend approximately three hours clearing it out — I can think of better ways to spend my birthday.

It was a hardship on many of us, although I can understand how some people may have spent the last several months rejoicing. I was not surprised to read that ski resort operators had a terrific season. Considering some of the winters they have had to deal with over the last couple of years, I'm happy for them. Too bad I don't ski anymore.

But the point has been made lots of times, and it bears repeating — we got through it.

Now we have to get ourselves through spring. And don't forget that we're only about six weeks from the start of summer.

And what would this world be without pessimists? I have already heard predictions that this is going to be a cold summer, at least as summers go. I heard on the radio last week about one "expert" who was quoted as observing the water in Lake Ontario is still a lot colder than it should be this time of year, and it's going to take a while for things to warm up. That, according to the expert I heard being cited, is going to mean there'll be a cooling effect on the water which is expected to have an impact on the whole area.

For what it's worth, I don't buy that for a second. I know it's seldom wise to argue with experts, but I am in the media, which means I spend a lot of my working life trying to find ways to be at odds with people who are supposed to know more than I do.

Besides, who am I to argue with predictions. There are still people around who are happy to razz me about my calls in advance of the 1991 municipal elections in Caledon (contrary to popular belief, they weren't all wrong, but had I backed up my predictions with a sizeable amount of money, I would have been drummed out of my family for skimping on my Christmas shopping that year).

I also picked the Leafs to make the playoffs this year, and even put that prediction into print (one of the people in my office asked me if I was drunk when I wrote that).

But I am always happy to draw on my experiences and plan accordingly. Having already lived through more than 50 summers, I know things can and do get bloody hot around here, and that's what I'm expecting this year.

I plan to make copious use of the air conditioning in my car as I make my way about Caledon and area over the coming months. I plan to kick myself frequently during the weeks to come because I didn't arrange to have our house air-conditioned when I had the chance (not to mention what it might have done for the resale value). I rigged up a spare bed in the basement last year, meaning Beth and I were able to find sort-of comfortable sleeping arrangements in the heat waves. I'm prepared to set up similar arrangements this year.

And as I told people during the coldest days of the winter that may now, at last, be over, "in a couple of months we'll be complaining about the heat."

That's a prediction I'm still willing to hold to.

Government standing up for maternal and newborn health

Here in Canada, we are fortunate that our families have access to the resources needed to live happy, healthy and productive lives.

Unfortunately, this is not the case for many around the world.

Things such as clean water and vaccinations — things we may take for granted — are desperately needed in many regions of the world. And without them, the health of countless human beings lies in jeopardy.

This need for basic provisions is magnified when dealing with expecting mothers and newborn children. Without adequate health care services, many mothers and children die each year. Indeed, the most recent data tells us that 6 million children will die before their fifth birthday and 300,000 women will die in pregnancy.

Because no mother should have to choose between herself and her baby, Prime Minister Stephen Harper and our government made maternal and child health our top development priority.

OTTAWA JOURNAL

David Tilson
MP Dufferin-Caledon

We first brought this issue to the international spotlight with the ground-breaking Muskoka Initiative. Before we championed these issues, the world was falling short on reducing child mortality and curbing maternal death.

Thanks to the Muskoka Initiative and subsequent global action, maternal and child mortality rates are declining. Between 2010 and 2013, Canada helped provide 5.8 million children with life-saving vaccines, more than 180 million children with vitamin A and 2 million pregnant women with supplements to help ensure healthier pregnancies.

But there is still more work to be done. Helping stop these preventable deaths is not only a moral imperative, but something at the very heart of our shared Canadian values.

At the end of May, Canada will host a Summit on Maternal, Newborn and Child Health. Through this Summit, we will be working to accelerate our health initiatives and continue to push this issue into the forefront.

Canadians across the country can be proud of the difference we are making in the world and the work Canadians do every day to save lives. We are within arm's reach of our goal of eliminating these preventable deaths.

During this Summit, we will take another step towards achieving that goal.

Earth Hour results are in Caledon improved from last year's numbers

Congratulations are going to the Town of Caledon community on their participation in Earth Hour, and continual environmental leadership.

Caledon citizens and businesses turned off their lights March 29 in recognition of the hour and the impacts of climate change. This simple action saw a 7.5 per cent reduction in electrical demand, a 0.5 per cent improvement over the results from 2013.

"I continue to be impressed by the growing involvement in Earth Hour in Caledon," said Mayor Marolyn Morrison. "It is clear that our community wants to take a stance on climate change."

The Earth Hour movement, since its inception in Sydney, Australia in 2007, has started a new call to action, "Going Beyond the Hour," which asks that supporters make a difference every hour in the fight against climate change.

The Town of Caledon is currently undergoing an exercise to push the Town "Beyond the Hour" in updating both its energy and environment strategic plans, benchmarking itself against municipal best practices, as well as receiving extensive feedback from the community on actions the Town should consider. Staff intends to finalize these actions in the coming months and reports will be made available at www.caledon.ca/environment.

For more information on the Town's environmental work, contact environment@caledon.ca

Stop the 'piecemeal' planning

Dreams can be realized. To bring light and sunshine to every level of the Eaton's Centre was realized, as was the park on King Street in the First Canadian Place with the waterfall, mature trees and rest areas. They did not exist in any plans or in the planners' and decision-makers' imaginations, until we introduced them to it.

Time to create a vision for a healthy, green and prosperous Caledon, and stop the piecemeal approach to planning it. The planning staff could be happier too, not occupied with picking on individual applications, but creating a wonderful vision for our town.

Trudeau's astonishing claim

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Claire Hoy

For centuries before the birth of Christ, the "science" of the cosmos was "settled" — the earth was flat. Period.

Then Greek philosopher Aristotle in the fourth century, to the chagrin of many, argued that no, the science wasn't "settled." The earth was orbital.

And so it goes. Things that are declared "settled," often turn out to be wrong.

Which brings us, alas, to Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau's astonishing claim last week that the issue of abortion in Canada is "settled" and that henceforth, any candidate for the Liberal Party is forbidden from straying from the so-called "pro-choice" philosophy, the only exceptions being sitting MPs who are pro-life and will be allowed to cling to their apparently outmoded moral views — presumably as long as they keep these views to themselves and make no attempt to act upon them.

In that respect, Trudeau joins NDP Leader Thomas Muclair, who has also made it clear that no NDP MP — either current or future — is allowed to hold, or even consider, a pro-life perspective.

And people accuse Prime Minister Stephen Harper of being dictatorial. Geez.

True, Harper won't allow his government to introduce any law on abortion — leaving Canada as the only advanced country in the world with no gestational limits on abortion — but at least he allows sitting MPs to hold pro-choice views and hasn't stopped several of them from bringing forth private members' bills pushing various aspects of the debate.

And there is a debate. A recent public opinion poll — albeit paid for by a pro-life group, but still conducted by a professional polling firm — found that 60 per cent of respondents felt there should be some limits on abortion. What sort of limits, and under what circumstances, vary greatly. But despite Trudeau's ridiculous claim to the contrary, not all Canadians are happy with the status quo. The issue is far from "settled" for millions of Canadians.

To be clear, your correspondent is decidedly pro-life. Not to the point where I believe that abortion is never acceptable, however regrettable it may be. For example, if there is a clear choice between the life of the mother and the life of the unborn child — a pretty rare occurrence — saving the mother's life is a moral imperative. Cases of rape and incest are also in a different category. But for the vast majority of cases, I believe that the entity growing inside the mother's womb is a human being, and not, as some ardent pro-choicers describe it, a blob of flesh and blood that can be disposed of for any reason the mother deems fit.

Well, not exactly any reason. Many who argue that abortion-on-demand is a sacred right for Canadian women, somehow see no contradiction in trying to stop people in certain cultures who favour boy babies over girl babies and chose to abort their babies just because they are girls. You can't have it both ways. If you have the absolute right to abort, that's what you have.

But the issue at stake here isn't abortion per se. The issue is what has happened to our parliamentary system when leaders decree — with no internal debates with their members, and no apparent urgency (nobody is proposing an abortion law that I'm aware of) — that long-established and widely-held moral views are not only beyond debate, but are simply not allowed.

The 18th century French essayist Joseph Joubert put it well when he wrote, "It is better to debate a question without settling it than to settle a question without debating it."

During his successful leadership contest, Trudeau promised a new openness. Really? This from a guy who has subsequently booted all Liberal senators out of his caucus — again, with no warning and no debate — and, despite repeated promises of an "open nomination" process has stepped directly into nominations, most obviously in barring former Liberal candidate Christine Innes from running in Trinity Spadina against Trudeau's hand-picked favorite.

And now those who do not worship at the altar of pro-choice theocracy need not apply.

Does this mean Trudeau doesn't want any votes from the millions of Canadians who hold various shades of belief on abortion? Will he demand a moral purity test to determine beforehand that Liberal supporters, not just their MPs, hold the "correct" view? Toss in edicts for the "correct" view on other "settled" issues, e.g. same-sex marriage and mankind's contribution to global warming, and he could be seriously affecting his future electoral chances. Trudeau may have inherited his father's ambition and arrogance, but he falls sadly short on political smarts and the importance of democratic debate. Pierre Trudeau didn't fear debate. He relished it.

Trudeau the Younger is so wrong-headed here that even the Toronto Star — which regularly treats Liberals with reverence — editorialized Saturday that despite Trudeau's solemn promises of openness "his actions don't match his words."

Oh my.

Notice of Application of Larvicide for Mosquito Control in the Region of Peel

From May 30 to September 30, 2014, the Region of Peel, under the authority of the Medical Officer of Health, will conduct a program to control mosquito larvae (immature mosquitoes) in stagnant water in order to prevent their development into carriers of West Nile Virus. The program will be carried out in the city of Brampton, the city of Mississauga, and the town of Caledon.

The larvicide Methoprene (product name – Altosid Pellets Methoprene 4.25%, registration number-21809 and/or Altosid XR Briquettes 2.1%, registration number-27694) or the larvicide Bacillus sphaericus Strain 2362 (product name – Vectolex WSP [50 BslTU/mg], registration number 28009) will be applied to municipal catch basins.

The larvicide Bacillus thuringiensis israelensis (Bti) H-14, product name – VectoBac 200G (registration #18158), VectoBac 1200L (registration #21062) and/or the larvicide Bacillus sphaericus Strain 2362 (product name Vectolex CG [registration #28008]) will be applied in granular or liquid form to selected bodies of surface water (such as ditches and ponds), depending on the results of testing for the presence of mosquito larvae. Signs will be posted at surface water locations where larvicide is applied.

Methoprene, Bti and Bacillus sphaericus are active ingredients approved for use by the federal government. Larviciding applications will be carried out under permit from the Ontario Ministry of the Environment. The larvicides will be applied by licensed applicators of GDG Environment (GDG Environnement Ltée) under contract to the Region of Peel.

Fines Ford helps Heroes Are Human tour with vehicles

A tour is currently making its way around Canada, aimed at raising awareness of the stresses experienced by people who deal with emergencies.

The Heroes Are Human cross-Canada PTSD-awareness tour started last Monday in St. John's Newfoundland, and it will make its way to 48 towns and cities in the coming months. Locally, stops are planned for Brampton July 4 and Aurora July 7. And the effort is being aided by Bob Fines of Fines Ford Lincoln of Bolton, which has supplied two vehicles for the tour.

"Bob's been a tremendous supporter of the charity for years," commented Heroes Are Human founder and Executive Director Vince Savoia. "He's obviously gone

As well, Signs Solutions in Bolton supplied the decals for the vehicles.

The tour is a grass-roots initiative of the Toronto-based Heroes Are Human - The Tema Conter Memorial Trust. It was launched in response to numerous suicides and reports of work-related post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) among public safety, correctional and military organizations.

Tema Conter, 25, was brutally murdered in Toronto in January 1988 by a convicted serial killer who had spent most of his adolescent and adult life in jail.

"Why is a broken leg considered a viable injury, but when something goes wrong in our brain, it's questioned?" observed Savoia. "We want to reduce the stigma of mental illness and psychological trauma."

"The men and women of Canada's public safety, military and correctional organizations witness human suffering up close, and it sometimes becomes very difficult to cope with the aftermath," he added. "There is light at the end of that dark tunnel. There is help available, and we want to make sure these men and women, and their families, know where to find it."

Savoia was a paramedic who attended to the murder scene the day Ms. Conter died. He founded the memorial trust after dealing with PTSD, which included flashbacks, nightmares, isolation and hyper vigilance.

Each stop on the tour will include a two-hour educational event. They will be open to the public and anyone who's interested in learning more about operational stress injuries. Frontline correctional, emergency services and military personnel, as well as mental health professionals, nurses, doctors and human resource professionals, are encouraged to attend.

"This is my way of giving back to the career I loved, but can no longer do," Savoia commented.

"We hope those who join us for these sessions will leave feeling hopeful, motivated and inspired," Savoia said.

Majority of Ontarians want Greenbelt to grow

After nine years, support for Ontario's Greenbelt remains strong, according to the Friends of the Greenbelt Foundation.

Ontarians want to see more land included in the land protection policy according to a recent poll conducted by Environics Research Group, the Foundation reported in a release issued last week.

According to the survey, three-quarters of Ontario's (74 per cent) think it is very important to continue to grow Ontario's Greenbelt. Polling results align with Mississauga, Oakville, and Toronto taking the necessary steps to grow the Greenbelt. These cities have begun work to include areas along Fourteen Mile Creek, Credit River and Etobicoke Creek river valleys, and the Don, Humber and Etobicoke Creeks as part of Ontario's Greenbelt. This is in addition to the recent inclusion of Glenorchy Conservation Area to Greenbelt protected land.

“Growing the Greenbelt ranks up there with developing public transit and increasing access to local food,” Foundation CEO Burkhard Mausberg said. “This overwhelming response is a most encouraging sign.”

Support for the Greenbelt is at an all-time high, according to the release, with 93 per cent of Ontarians supporting the 1.8 million acres of protected land.

“Knowing that we are going into the review of Ontario’s Greenbelt Plan in 2015, we are delighted that the Greenbelt remains an important contribution to the quality of life in Ontario,” Mausberg added.

Other findings of note that were cited include nearly all respondents (99 per cent) said protecting the natural water system is an important benefit of the Greenbelt and 97 per cent said preserving agricultural lands and green spaces that support clean air are important benefits to them.

The Greenbelt Foundation survey was conducted by Environics Research Group from Sept. 12 to Oct. 20, 2013 among a sample of 825 residents of the Greater Golden Horseshoe. A sample of this size has a margin of error of 3.4 percentage points either way, 19 times out of 20. A disproportionate sample was employed, with Toronto being under sampled and other regions over sampled.

Heroes Are Human founder and executive Director Vince Savoia (third from left) was joined by various supporters recently at Fines Ford Lincoln, including advisor and former police officer Gary Wiles, media and public relations advisor Erin Alvarez, paramedic Rick Trombley, Natalie Ritacca, Fines Ford General Manager Carlos Martins, Michael Quinn of Signs Solutions, Paul Januszewski, paramedic volunteer Paula Trombley and tour logistics coordinator Derrick Allday.

Third period makes the difference

Junior C Bandits squeezed out in home opener

By Brian Lockhart

After playing to a 4-4 tie in the first period, and going down by one at the end of the second frame, the Caledon Junior C Bandits lost their first home game of the season when the Fergus Thistles got the edge in the final 20 minutes of lacrosse.

It was a tight game, with the score being tied three times in the first period.

The Fergus squad took a two-goal lead in the second period, but the Bandits came back to tie it up again.

The second frame ended with the Thistles having a one-goal advantage.

Going into the final period, the Fergus squad scored two quick ones to take a three-goal lead before the Bandits could notch a third period marker.

Three more Fergus goals followed, with Caledon scoring one final single to end the game at 15-11 for the Fergus team.

The Bandits' roster had only one practice as a team, according to head coach Mike Gillan.

While the squad turned out a decent performance, Gillan said there is going to be adjustments when it comes to player performance and attitude.

With players dropping out of Brampton Junior B, and moving to the C level, Gillan said they will have to realize that C level play is just as tough as the higher tier.

"We weren't ready," he said. "We had guys coming in late, we had guys coming in with the mentality that they were made to play the game and they belonged here regardless, and that's not the case. That's something I've got to beat out of some of these kids."

The affiliation with the Brampton Junior B club means some players who don't make the cut will filter down to the C level.

"They (Brampton) said 'we will send you our cuts,'" Gillan observed. "There's a couple that think they should be playing B, and we've got to prove to them that this is just as good a league."

The squad has not had enough time to work on systems, Gillan said, and the result was a lot of individual play on the floor with the team not having the time to gel as a unit.

With the regular season now underway, the squad will have no choice but to start working together.

Gillan summed it up by saying, "There's an attitude adjustment that we need to fine-tune real quick."

The Bandits played their second game of the season last Wednesday night (May 7) on the road against Halton Hills. That's where they suffered their second loss when Halton scored five in the second period to gain a 5-3 lead.

Three more Halton goals in the third and single from Caledon ended the game

8-4 for the Bulldogs.

The Bandits will return to their home arena in Bolton May 20 to host the squad from Wilmot.

Game time is 8 p.m.

The Caledon Junior C Bandits battle it out with the Fergus Thistles during the Bandits' home opener at the Bolton arena last Tuesday (May 6). The Caledon squad came up short, taking a 15-11 loss to the visitors to start the season.

Brewers split double header with Orangeville Giants

By Brian Lockhart

The Bolton Brewers hosted another double header this past weekend when they welcomed the Orangeville Giants to the diamond at North Hill Park.

The first game didn't go too well, as the Brewers suffered their first loss of the season when they had to leave the field down 3-2 to the visitors.

It was a game that saw most of the scoring action in the first couple of innings, when Orangeville brought in two runs on a couple of triples.

The Brewers lit up the score board in the sixth inning, when they loaded the bases then brought in a run when a Bolton batter was clipped on the elbow by a pitch to walk in the run.

They narrowed the gap on a single RBI, but that's all they could do for the game and had to settle for the one run loss.

"It's kind of the way of the game," said coach Mike Wallace. "You've got to give them (Orangeville) credit. Their pitcher made the big pitches when it counted."

When the first game was over, the teams took a break to re-group for the second outing, but this time the Brewers responded with a devastating performance.

Wallace said you can't worry about the first loss — you just get on with what you have to do.

"All our guys are veterans with us," he said. "It's just one game, so you put it behind you, and march on to the next one."

That's exactly what they did and showed why they are a championship team by taking the second game 16-0.

The Brewers will be back at their home diamond at North Hill Park next Thursday (May 22) to host the Creemore Braves.

The first pitch is scheduled for 8:30 p.m.

Bolton Brewers pitcher Trent Barwick goes into the wind-up during the first game of a double header against the Orangeville Giants Saturday at North Hill Park in Bolton. The Brewers lost the first game but came back with a win in game two.

George's proving the team to beat in Inglewood ball hockey

The last two weeks of Inglewood Ball Hockey League (IBHL) action saw some close matches, as well as a couple of blow-outs.

As things are settling down after each team has played four games, George's Arena Sports are leading the way with notches only in the win column. They are also showing the way in scoring punch and defensive stinginess.

April 29

Ron's Tire Discounter 2
Carney Plumbing 0

In a nail biter, Ron's Tire rolled over the Plumbers with Justin Parravano earning the goose-egg for their second win of the campaign.

Nick Brouillette potted what would be the game winner early in the second frame while on the power play from Ryan Frangakis. It was with less than 30 seconds to go that Ron's Tire netted the insurance marker from Alex Boughen, assisted by Cam Batten and Brouillette with Carney's keeper on the bench.

George's Arena Sports 6
Mr. Handyman 1

George's were slow to warm up and netted only one in the first when Joey Lemos, from Adam Baistrocchi, found the back of the twine tent.

The second saw George's come alive and pot four with Dan Wood, Baistrocchi, Travis Watts and Jessie Lemos earning the markers with help from Watts, Andy Sant, Mike Desmarais and Joey Lemos. Mr. Handyman did show some signs of life on the scoreboard when Sunny Dillon, from Mario Perry, found a hole in the armor of George's tender. The third saw George's net one more from Jozef Neu, with the assist going to Watts.

First tie of season notched

We Are Creative 2 Caledon Hills Cycling 1

We Are got out to an early lead when John West-Carvalho beat the Caledon Hills goalie on the set-up from Steven DeFrancesco and Michael Spagnuolo.

Caledon Hills responded early in the second period with Travis Cassar lighting the lamp, with help from Kyle Dalcin and Sandy Shand. We Are answered back a little more than two minutes later with what would prove to be enough when Mike Tarasco, from Spagnuolo and goalie Dom Klosowski, scored for the win.

May 6 George's Arena Sports 7 Caledon Hills Cycling 1

George's went to town in the second, garnering six of their seven goals.

Point getters for George's were Jake Lake, Jon Desmarais, Jozef Neu, Joey Lemos, Jessie Lemos, Baistrocchi, Jason Duncan, Sant and Shawn Alonto. Caledon Hills Cycling's lone peddler was Dalcin from Cassar and Brandon Sinclair late in the first.

Carney Plumbing 2 We Are Creative 2

In the first draw of the season, We Are Creative showed their creativity and stormed out to a 2-0 lead half way through the first period.

West-Carvalho lit the lamp for both of We Are's goals and both were unassisted. The veteran Carney crew, without their new additions, turned to the other young gun David Rothfuchs as he netted the lone marker of the second frame and helped on the tying goal in the third, with his brother Jordan setting up his goal. Mark-Olesen-Varnell threw the ball toward the net in the third, and it squeaked by We Are's defenders and crossed the line to earn the Plumbers the tie.

Mr. Handyman 4 Ron's Tire Discounter 2

In an evenly-matched game, the Handymen were able to drop the hammer and get the win over Ron's Tire.

The first saw Mr. Handyman net a pair (Anthony Villari, from Justin Fiorino, and Nick Franseze unassisted) and Ron's Tire pot one (Taylor Elkins unassisted). Mr. Handyman extended their lead in the second when Fiorino found the back of the twine tent from Villari. Matt Scida, from Villari, sealed the win for Mr. Handyman early in the third, but the never-give-up Tire crew netted one late in the period to draw within a pair, from the stick of Noel Fortner.

Officers from the Caledon Street Crime Unit arrested and charged two men from Brampton, aged 31 and 48, as well as a 21-year-old man from Vaughan. They have been charged with possession of property obtained by crime and theft under $5,000.

MEMORIAM

BROWN, Marie

In Loving Memory of a Wonderful Mother and Grandmother who passed away May 17th, 2000.

We feel a warmth around us like your presence is so near,

We close our eyes to visualize your face when you were here,

We endure the times we spent together and they are locked inside our hearts,

For as long as we have memories we will never be apart,

Even though we cannot speak no more our voice is always there,

Because every night before we sleep we have you in our prayers.

Deeply Missed and Forever Love

Credit View Public School marks 50 years

It was a time for celebration recently at Credit View Public School near Cheltenham. The school was marking 50 years of education in the community. The celebration included the unveiling of this plaque to mark the occasion. School Council Chair Theresa Dixon and her son, Student Council Prime Minister Ryan Dixon, flanked Vice-Prime Minister Kady Wellman as Principal David Abela and Trustee Stan Cameron unveiled the plaque. "I'm quite at home here, in our small and mighty school," Ryan commented during the ceremony.

Fence encroachment still okay with Region

By Bill Rea

Peel council recently agreed to go along with the encroachment of a Belfountain property onto Regional road.

Council accepted the staff recommendation that the encroachment of a fence, concrete front entrance pad and front portion of the two-storey frame house on the Old Main Street property be permitted.

Regional staff reported there had been such an agreement in place with the previous owner of the property since June 2010. That agreement was slated to last for 20 years. But the property was recently sold and the new owner wanted the agreement continued. It's due to expire Dec. 31, 2033.

The report added the property owner is to be responsible for all maintenance costs involved.

Regional councillors approved the staff recommendation without comment.

There were several Credit View grads looking over some of the memorabilia on display, including Jennifer (Bowman-Defoe) Rodgers from the Class of '94 and Sara (Ritchie) Hanford, Class of '93.

Grade 5 student Emily Hicks was giving her father Steve some pointers on the computer.
